

MORNING APPEAL.

WEDNESDAY.....MARCH 19, 1879

THE OTHER LIFE.

Hon. Thomas Fitch lectured at Dashaway Hall, San Francisco, on "The Other Life," and in answer to Colonel Bob Ingersoll. Mr. Fitch having been introduced by President E. T. Batters, after prolonged applause, said he professed adhesion to no religious sect, and expected no church to be responsible for his utterances. The presumption was decidedly against his being in any way in the Lord's service, for he was a lawyer, and lawyers are popularly credited with allegiance to a patron saint nameless in that hall on that occasion. He was not by profession, and he feared insufficiently by practice, a Christian, and if he succeeded in striking a blow in defense of the fortress of Christianity it would be the blow of a volunteer. The churches which had struck at that gifted rebel against Christianity had been hampered by their theological rules. He believed Ingersoll had not yet been replied to by one not professing to belong to any church, as he himself did, although he devoutly believed that it was not "all of life to live nor all of death to die." He left the Christian flock to the care of their shepherds. He spoke to "those outside of the churches, those who know little of technical theology, those who worship at no stated times nor at any designated temples, to those who patronize no particular religion, to those who attend dances and theaters and horse races; to that honest, earnest, progressive world which respects generally that splendid system of theology that for countless centuries has held aloft, to a constantly perfecting civilization, the radiant flambeau which has lit it on its way." It is to that world, which thinks "if I die I shall live again," that I give the sinner's reply to the infidel. There is an old book which says "Judge of the tree by its fruits." The inspiration of the book may be denied, but the accuracy of the conclusion must be admitted. By any reasonable measure of values there is not a religion that ever was believed in but it was infinitely better for the world than no religion at all, infinitely preferable to the cold and pulseless nonbelief of the materialists.

This much says Thomas and a good deal besides, mostly in his highly humorous vein. For example, in discussing the materialistic notion he draws the following caricature:

According to the theory of the materialists, if a pound of flour is put into a Shakespeare the result will be a tragedy, in a Napoleon, a victory, in a Dick Turpin a ride on Black Bess, and in an Ingersoll a lecture on ghosts. We are wax works, and a mutton chop is the crank pin that winds us up. The lover says to his Matilda, "I love you. If you will be my bride life will be one long dream of happiness." She immediately recognizes the cutlet of calf he had eaten for breakfast as the food force of the sentiment, and immediately making a draft on the Spring chicken which she had eaten she coos the reply: "Claude, my adored one, I am theineine."

Now, Tom Fitch knows as much about the true inwardness of religious systems as Henry Ward Beecher knows about the merits of the Chinese question. If he imagines that he can impair the argument of Bob Ingersoll, or rather the argument of really great intellects such as Tom Paine, of whose works he does nothing more than make a popular and bombastic paraphrase, he is greatly deceived. But he is not deceived. He knows as well as anybody that in his lecture he did not even touch upon the true premises of infidels, deists, or atheists. He is an artist in gossamer word work. He knows his sphere and you never catch him outside of it. In so far he is a genius.

A NEW THEORY REGARDING MUMMIES.

The Journal of Chemistry has the following: Having observed that Egyptian mummies could be divided into two classes, one embracing those bodies which had been embalmed intact, and the other including those bodies which had been eviscerated, Dr. Gauselbach, a Swedish chemist of repute and professor in the University at Upsal, has formed the opinion that the mummies of the first class are not really dead, but are only in a condition of suspended animation; though, unfortunately for historians, the secret of bringing them again to life has been lost. In support of his theory he adduces the results of his own researches and experiments, one of which consists in submitting a snake to a process, the details of which are of course kept a secret, which petrifies it. In this condition it has been laid aside for a year or two at a time, and is then restored to life by some equally mysterious vivifying process. This has now been going on for about fifteen years, and the snake does not seem to dislike it. Dr. Gauselbach is said to have applied to the Swedish Government for leave to experiment on a condemned criminal, the understanding being that if the experiment is successful the criminal shall receive pardon because of the service thus rendered to science and, possibly, to humanity.

R. C. Emmons of Lovelock arrived here yesterday. He informs us that an attempt to assassinate him was made recently, and that his son narrowly escaped the bullet which was evidently intended for him. The shot was fired into the express office, which he had left a few moments before, and in which his son was standing at the time. The bullet was fired from the door, which was partly opened, and buried itself in the counter. A short time before this attempt was made on his life, Mr. Emmons' cellar was fired by an incendiary, and burned, with its contents. Mr. Emmons does not know his enemies, and can assign no reason for these cowardly outrages, except it is because he attends to his own business and does all he can to attract settlers to the locality in which he resides.—Silver State, 17th.

Senator Jones of Nevada, and Blaine of Maine, have been taking a trip to Richmond, Va., to look after some railroad property that both are interested in.

A RAY OF LIGHT.

The New York Sun, in its Wall Street review of the 17th, says: The growing animosity of the West toward the East has been much talked about of late in connection with the Chinese question. As a matter of course a great deal of nonsense has been uttered on the subject, both by pro-Chinese and anti-Chinese; but to judge from the opinions of neutral and intelligent observers, the question is a much more momentous one than is generally supposed at the East. Our old friend Maurice Strakosh, for instance, a very shrewd man, and one who knows California well, said the other day on this subject: "I tell you, gentlemen, no amount of Presidential vetoes will reconcile California to the presence of the Chinese. The question, I assure you, is one of much greater moment than you can possibly imagine."

TOE AND HEEL MAN.

It is stated that Rowell, the Englishman who won the late six days' walking match in New York city, has decided to start at once for the Pacific coast, and that he will be accompanied by his brother pedestrian, Harri-man. It is also announced that a match has been arranged between Rowell and Valentine Zahn, the doorkeeper at the Standard Theater, San Francisco, to take place within two or three weeks from date, at Platt's Hall, for a purse of $5,000. The distance and terms of the proposed contest have not yet been announced. It is also reported that Weston has telegraphed him a challenge from across the Atlantic. It will keep the champion busy to preserve his hard won belt.

From the Bodie Standard we learn of the following unfortunate accident to an old Carsonite: It is with deep regret that we learn that while Uncle Bob Foulke was coming up from Carson his hat box, containing a brand new stove-pipe hat of the latest and nobbiest style, fell off the stage and a wheel passed over it, rendering it utterly unfit for the purpose for which it was intended. It has ever been a matter of pride with all true Bodieites to see Uncle Bob promenade each Sunday afternoon in a genteel plug tile—a dispensation having been granted him in that respect—and this melancholy news will strike each heart with a pang of regret. We trust that Uncle Bob may be so fortunate as to repair the damage done to his wardrobe at an early day.

A man whose name is supposed to have been John McCann, a native of Scotland, was killed very suddenly yesterday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, at R. M. P. Greeley's lumber yard. He was engaged in unloading flat-car loads of lumber and while cutting a side stake the load suddenly fell over, catching him under it and crushing his skull, killing him instantly. The coroner will hold an inquest at 7 o'clock this evening.—Reno Gazette of the 17th.

The Reno Gazette of the 17th says: C. C. Gates, a pioneer of Washoe County, died this morning at seven o'clock from the kick of a horse, which he received several days ago. Mr. Gates was a pioneer in this county. In company with Mr. Stone he built the bridge across the Truckee at Glendale, which was the first crossing in the county.

That even the very great may suffer the pangs of social slight is made manifest by the following dispatch of the 16th from London: Gladstone was not invited to the Duke of Connaught's wedding. This omission excited much comment in political circles, as Lords Granville and Hartington received invitations.

Reno Journal of yesterday says: Scarlet fever and diphtheria is raging among the little ones. A child of Wm. Van Wellor died Sunday with the former. Mrs. Richardson's two little ones are getting better. Of diphtheria, several new cases are reported.

The Tuscarora Times-Review says: "Stay by the camp. We have on abiding faith in it." We should judge by the above that some of the boys did not have an abiding faith.
